Literature and authorships in Sport Psychology in countries of non-English language

FÉLIX GUILLÉN

University of Las Palmas de Gran Canaria (Spain)

This paper presents a bibliographic survey into the field of sport psychology and related disciplines. The survey encompasses a wide range of authors and titles which have appeared in non-English language publications. It includes more than 350 references of books from both specialized scientific and general interest areas mainly in Europe and Latin America.

KEY WORDS: Authorship, Bibliography, Physical activity, Sport.

Currently and particularly over the last few years, there has been a outpouring of publications dealing with sport and physical activity psychology. This increasing number reflects the advances that have taken place in the field.

However, despite this increase in the literature or perhaps due to its volume, the coverage of the phenomenon has been limited, especially with regards the varying geographic and linguistic contexts.

Little is known about the existing publications that are coming out in languages other than English, though many are of a high quality. We have therefore carried out this survey to broaden the information base.

The present survey divides these publications by languages and countries. In some cases they are classed by titles published by authors of other countries whose work has been translated to another language.

Also there has been an effort to structure the information based on languages and geographic areas to facilitate subsequent bibliographic searches. Thus the first listing contains those books published in Spain followed by those published in Spanish in Latin America. There has also been a review of those books appearing in Portuguese, either from Brazil or Portugal, followed by a description of those books appearing in other languages from across Europe (including Italy, France, Germany and Denmark).

With this study we have attempted to provide the broadest possible overview of all the books we have located in the field of sport psychology. To enhance this study, we have included work from related fields such as motor learning, motor development, sport teaching, sport sociology and physical education as many of these publications coincide or overlap with our area of sport and physical activity psychology.
